

Pre-existing anxiety and heavy caffeine consumption amplify acute procedural pain by a clinically significant margin. Preparing for a facial modification as if it were a paranormal invasion is counterproductive.