

Cross-contamination between clean and dirty zones represents a major failure mode in infection control. The dirty tray demanded international diplomatic immunity.