

Coupling a tiny anodic component to a massive cathodic component forces the smaller piece to dissolve rapidly.

True love means overlooking a massive structural imbalance.