

Cheaper free-machining alloys leak significantly more metallic material into the body than higher-grade alternatives despite having similar compositions.

A bargain is just an expensive mistake on a payment plan.