

A breached decorative plating exposes the vulnerable substrate metal directly to aggressive biological fluids.

Superficial charm rarely survives a heavy perspiration event.