

Polishing irritated jewelry strips away its natural protective film, turning a mechanical adjustment into a chemical vulnerability.

Enlightenment requires letting go of all protective boundaries.