

Spreading current over a small anode coupled to a massive cathode causes rapid dissolution.

The tiny thread does all the heavy lifting while the gem gets the glory.