

Polymer retainers are completely radiolucent and lack metallic elements, meaning they will not appear on the scan.

Vanity is strictly punished by total invisibility.