

The EU Nickel Directive successfully reduced allergy rates among young women by approximately 40%.

The giant rubber stamp of bureaucracy successfully squashed slightly less than half the problem.