

Dermal anchors consist of bases placed beneath the skin and visible tops attached above them.

The detective spent all night interrogating headwear while completely ignoring the suspect wearing it.