

Every bend of the finger changes the local skin tension.

Living life as rigid wooden planks on skateboards successfully avoids all skin movement.