

New testing standards demand chemical limits in plastics be proven by laboratory measurement rather than generic compliance claims.

A quest most glorious until the paperwork phase.