
Regulatory restrictions apply specifically to the plasticised portions of an item rather than the total mass of the object.

The inspector remains deeply suspicious of the bead.