

Laboratories must physically extract and measure specific restricted compounds to verify the safety of synthetic rubbers.

Subatomic mining remains a delicate profession.