

An irritation bump typically begins to shrink within 3-7 days once the mechanical irritant is removed.
The profound revelation that removing the problem actually removes the problem.