

A septum retainer sits in an enzymatically active environment that no standard heating oven can reproduce.

Noses are notoriously difficult to simulate.