

Oxidation induction time measures remaining antioxidant capacity rather than relying on an arbitrary expiration date.

An arbitrary date requires far less equipment.