

A retainer holds a continuous physical load while worn and slowly accumulates permanent strain through creep.

Gravity always wins in the end.