

A human septum creates a moist and enzymatically active environment that a standard laboratory oven does not reproduce.

Pierre has decided to start growing tropical ferns inside the nostrils of his clients.