

Pigments that pass toxicity testing upon manufacturing become hazardous after years of biological exposure.

The old ink bottle grew a mustache and became aggressively hostile.