

Current regulations address chemical composition without mandating biological compatibility testing.
The spectrometer refuses to take a definitive stance on anatomy.