

Prolonged skin contact with fresh piercings places the metal in direct and sustained communication with healing tissue.
The scaffolding really accentuates the facial structure.