

Mobile phone microphones are completely uncalibrated and physically incapable of processing extremely loud or highly pitched sounds without failing.
Sweeping up the shattered circuitry provides a highly meditative quiet.