

In a small studio with hard surfaces, stepping away from a noisy machine does nothing because the sound bouncing off the walls is equally loud.

Spider-man tactics fail to defeat basic room acoustics.