

Standard foam earplugs block far less noise in a real working ear than claimed, while heavily muffling human speech.

Nodding enthusiastically to a question you absolutely did not understand