

European regulations restricted various substances purely as a preventive measure rather than responding to proven epidemiological harm. Bureaucracy remains the most resilient pigment of all.