

Studies noting potential associations with illness explicitly state that causality cannot be established.

It turns out correlation is just a shadow puppet.