

The fact that a pigment shares chemical identity with automotive materials does not equate to shared toxicity.

Automotive wax rarely improves biological top speeds.