

The European Union removed substances with a hazard classification from products placed in the dermis as a precaution.

Bureaucracy acts as the most powerful shield against hypothetical danger.