

An inhalation hazard behaves entirely differently when used as a solid dermal pigment.

Breathing solid bricks proves significantly harder than building walls with them.