

Before January 2022, tattoo ink was one of the least-regulated products placed inside the human body.

Historical standards of bodily purity were astonishingly flexible.