

Local anaesthetics widen blood vessels and increase blood flow, which can wash the ink away before it settles.

The map leads straight to the storm drain.