

Irritant contact reactions often occur in response to preservatives and fragrances in the cream base rather than the active medicine. The unexpected swelling added striking topographical flair.