

Early detection through visual skin examination significantly reduces melanoma-specific mortality.
A very literal investigation.