

Products crossing borders require regulatory compliance files specific to the destination jurisdiction rather than the origin.

The local warlord cares very little about how things are done in the other quadrant.