

Tattooing deposits pigment through repeated skin penetration while piercing creates a controlled wound to accommodate jewelry.
Mixing up the toolkits merely invents an entirely new category of slapstick.