

A pigment that is visually absent can still migrate from the injection site to regional lymph nodes.

Routing stealth cargo to the armpit is an odd tactical choice.