

A pigment that changes state under light may undergo molecular rearrangement that fails to remain perfectly reversible after repeated cycles.

Clicking yourself into static is a dubious pastime.