

Every additional component in an optical system creates another manufacturing and quality-control burden.

Building precarious traps for yourself is an unusual hobby.