

Sunlight is not a laboratory switch; it contains ultraviolet radiation, visible light, infrared energy, and fluctuating intensity.

The sky refuses to respect your preferred dimmer settings.