

Repeated illumination adds an environmental stressor to a material already placed beneath the skin.

The flesh simply adores being rapidly microwaved for amusement.