

A disappearing tattoo may create a false sense of security, encouraging repeated exposure to intense ultraviolet light.

What you cannot see cannot possibly be roasting you alive.