

The particles have not packed their bags and left; they have changed how they interact with light.

The grand finale is just sitting in the dark forever.