

Covering an existing tattoo is severely restricted by pigment density and leaves limited structural flexibility.

A gentle brushstroke cannot hide a remarkably dense mistake.