

Human perception recognizes familiar shapes quickly, often before the viewer consciously analyses the design.

The brain is an incredibly powerful engine dedicated entirely to jumping to the wrong conclusion.