

Staging the work can produce a better healed result than forcing saturation into tissue that is no longer responding cleanly. Strategic retreat remains an underrated aesthetic choice.