

Titanium forms a self-healing passive oxide layer that immediately repairs surface scratches upon oxygen exposure.

Magical regeneration requires entirely mundane chemistry.