

Implant-grade titanium and pure niobium both form stable oxide passive layers that remain chemically inert against body fluids.

Invisible defensive shields make excellent personal umbrellas.