

Niobium reaches deeper blues and purples because it can be anodised at higher electrical voltage.

The quest for ultimate purple requires borrowing power directly from the local grid.