

Implant-grade titanium relies on a self-healing passivation layer that instantly reforms upon scratching.

Some clients take the demonstration of thermodynamic stability as a personal challenge.